The Challenge of Comedy

Visual Prompt: What makes people laugh?

Unit Overview

If laughter is truly the best medicine, then a study of challenges would not be complete without a close examination of the unique elements of comedy. Overcoming challenges is often easier when we are able to look at the humorous side of life. However, finding humor is not always easy; it can be a challenge in itself. In this unit, you will learn how authors create humor and how they use humor to reveal a universal truth (theme).
GOALS:
• To analyze how a variety of authors create humor in print and nonprint texts
• To analyze how humor is used to reveal a universal truth (theme)
• To write a well-developed analysis of a humorous text
• To analyze and perform a scene from a Shakespearean comedy
• To understand verbals and how they are used in writing

Learning Targets
• Preview the big ideas in the unit and make predictions about the topics of study.
• Demonstrate an understanding of the skills and knowledge needed to complete Embedded Assessment 1 successfully.

Making Connections
In the final unit you will encounter the challenging task of appreciating humorous texts and Shakespearean texts. You will use all your collaborative, speaking and listening, reading, and writing skills as you examine the ways in which authors create humor.

Essential Questions
Based on your current knowledge, respond to the following Essential Questions:
1. How do writers and speakers use humor to convey truth?
2. What makes an effective performance of a Shakespearean comedy?

Developing Vocabulary
Use a QHT chart to sort the terms on the Contents page. Remember, one academic goal is to move all words to the “T” column by the end of the unit.

Unpacking Embedded Assessment 1
Closely read the assignment for Embedded Assessment 1.
Write an essay that explains how an author creates humor for effect and uses it to communicate a universal truth.
Then, find the Scoring Guide and work with your class to paraphrase the expectations. Create a graphic organizer to use as a visual reminder of the required concepts (what you need to know) and skills (what you need to do).
After each activity, use this graphic to guide reflection about what you have learned and what you still need to learn in order to be successful in the Embedded Assessment.

INDEPENDENT READING LINK
Read and Respond
For your outside reading for this unit, choose texts by writers whom you find humorous. You might look for humorous short stories as well as narrative essays and poetry. Create a list of titles in your Independent Reading List of at least five texts based on recommendations from your teacher as well as your own research.
Understanding the Complexity of Humor

Learning Targets
• Write an objective summary of an informational text.
• Demonstrate understanding of the denotations and connotations of words related to humor.

Preview
In this activity, you will read an essay on the topic of humor. As you read, think about your own sense of humor and what makes you laugh.

Setting a Purpose for Reading
• As you read, underline key words and phrases that explain the main idea of each section.
• Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR
Marc Tyler Nobleman (b. 1972) has written more than 70 books. His current writing interest is picture books for readers of all ages. He is also a cartoonist whose work has been published in numerous well-known publications, including The Wall Street Journal, Forbes, The Saturday Evening Post, and New York Daily News.

Essay

Made You Laugh

by Marc Tyler Nobleman

1 Would you like to know a language everyone in the world understands? You already do—because you laugh. Any two people from vastly different cultures who don't speak a word of the other's language still know exactly what is meant when the other person laughs.

2 Think of laughter as the unofficial language of Earth. Yet how much do any of us really understand about humor?

On the Laugh Track
3 What makes things funny? READ asked John Ficarra, the editor of MAD magazine. After all, he should know. Here's what he said: "Monkeys. They're unbeatable. For example, show a photo of a dentist—not funny. Show a photo of a dentist with a monkey in his chair, and it’s comedy gold. Try this theory out on a few of your family photos, and you’ll see.” OK, so monkeys are funny. What else? How about this?

4 Two hunters were in the woods, when one collapsed. He didn’t seem to be breathing. The other called the emergency number and said, “My friend is dead! What can I do?” The operator said, “Calm down, I can help. First, let’s make sure he’s dead.” After a second of silence on the hunter’s end, the operator heard a gunshot. The hunter came back on the phone and said, “OK, now what?”

5 If you laughed, you’re not alone. In the year 2001, that joke was voted the funniest in the world as part of a project called LaughLab. Psychologist Richard Wiseman’s goal was to determine what makes people laugh and what is found to be funny among men and women, older and younger people, and people from different countries. His research team tested people in person and asked others to submit opinions online using a “Giggleometer,” which ranked jokes on a scale of 1–5. More than 40,000 jokes were tested.

6 You may be saying to yourself, “Studying jokes? Is that science?” But plenty of smart people say yes. Laughter is a biological function. It has a certain rhythm; laughter syllables build, then trail off, and they come out in a repetitive, not random, sequence. For example, “ha-ha-ho-ho-he” is typical, but “ha-ho-ha-ho-ha” or “he-ho-he” just doesn’t happen.

7 Babies begin to laugh instinctively when they’re about four months old, perhaps to form a connection with parents. Those born blind and deaf also laugh, so laughter is not dependent on sight and hearing. Other animals, notably chimps, exhibit laugh-like behavior when playing with one another. Even rats, when tickled, make high-pitched squeals that can be interpreted as laughter. (As you might guess, only a dedicated few know this firsthand.)

Comedy Is Serious Stuff

8 Comics know that the same jokes are not funny to everyone everywhere. Ed Hiestand, a writer for comedy great Johnny Carson, told READ, “Everyone who writes comedy needs to know the audience. On the Carson show, everybody would laugh on a Friday night. Nobody would laugh on a Monday.” Even within one state or town or family, senses of humor are as varied as the people are. Professional comics do not assume a 10 p.m. audience will like a joke because a 7 p.m. audience did.

9 Comedians who test jokes for a living say it’s hit or miss. “It’s a tough gig, and you have to have a large threshold for pain,” said stand-up Jay Nog. Performers whose jokes get a two-second laugh consider that a significant accomplishment.

10 Timing is critical. Starting stand-up Zubair Simonson said he’s learning the hard way that “good timing can cause a weak joke to soar, while poor timing can cause a strong joke to falter.” Authors and film actors do not often get immediate public feedback. But comics do.

11 What keeps the funny guys going? The laughs and after-effects. “The best humor has some sort of layer to it; it makes a statement of some kind or comment,” said Margy Yuspa, a director at Comedy Central. “An example is [Dave] Chappelle. His comedy is funny on the surface and also often comments on race or social issues.”

Funny You Said That

12 Comedians have their own theories about humor. “What makes us laugh is a surprise change in perspective that connects an unknown with a known idea in a unique manner,” said Ronald P. Culberson, a humorist at FUNsulting.com. “For instance, a three-legged dog walks into an Old West saloon and says, “I'm looking for the man who shot my paw.”

13 Ask an average person why humans laugh, and he or she would probably say, “Because something was funny.” But comics need to know what gives the giggles; their livelihood depends on it.

14 Comedian Anthony DeVito told READ that “people tend to laugh at things that reinforce what they already believe. Comedy tells them they're right.”

15 Gary Gulman, a finalist in Last Comic Standing, a reality TV show and comedy competition, gave specifics. “Sometimes it's a keen observation about something you thought you lived through. Sometimes it's a juxtaposition of words. Sometimes it's a gesture or a sound. An encyclopedia couldn't do this question justice.”

What Are You Laughing At?

16 Yet laughter is not always a planned response to a joke. One study found that 80 percent of the time, we laugh at something that just happens. People often laugh just because someone else does. Like a yawn, a laugh is contagious. That's why some sitcoms use laugh tracks.

17 Laughter is also social, a way to bond with others. After all, how often do you laugh alone? When two or more people laugh at the same thing, it is as if nature reminds them of what they have in common.

18 Behavioral neuroscientist Robert R. Provine conducted a 10-year experiment in which he eavesdropped on 2,000 conversations in malls, at parties, and on city sidewalks. He found that the greatest guffaws did not follow intentionally funny statements; people laughed hardest at everyday comments that seemed funny only in a certain social context.

19 “Do you have a rubber band?” is not in and of itself humorous, but it is if it's said in response to “I like Amelia so much. I wish I could get her attention.”

Theories of Funniness

20 There are three main theories about humor.

21 Release theory—Humor gives a break from tension. In a horror movie, as a character creeps through a dark house (often idiotically) to follow an eerie noise, he might open a door to find a cat playing with a squeeze toy. The audience laughs in relief. Humor also lets us deal with unpleasant or forbidden issues, such as death and violence. People are often more comfortable laughing at something shocking said by someone else, though they would never say it themselves. Comedian Keenen Ivory Wayans once said, “Comedy is the flip side of pain. The worst things that happen to you are hysterical—in retrospect. But a comedian doesn't need retrospect; he realizes it's funny while he's in the eye of the storm.”

22 Superiority theory—Audience members laugh at those who appear to be more stupid than they judge themselves to be. Slapstick humor, such as seeing a guy slip on a banana peel, often falls into this category. This theory dates back to Plato in ancient Greece and was prominent in the Middle Ages, when people with deformities were often employed as court jesters.

23 Some comedians exploited this theory by building a routine—or even a persona—around the idea that they were losers who couldn't catch a break. Larry David, David Letterman, and Woody Allen are comedians who have done this, each in his own way.
24 Incongruity theory—People laugh when things that are not normally associated with each other are put together. Many comedy duos, from Laurel and Hardy to David Spade and Chris Farley, feature a thin man and a fat man, a visual contrast.

25 People also laugh when there is a difference between what they expect to happen and what actually occurs. They are being led in a certain direction, and then that direction abruptly changes, and the unpredictability makes them laugh. Children see birds all the time without reaction, but if one flies into their classroom through an open window, they will probably explode in giggles.

Got Laughs?

26 What we laugh at changes as we age. Here are some examples.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Audience</th>
<th>Often Likes</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Young children</td>
<td>Slapstick, or silly physical humor</td>

<tr>
<td>Elementary-school children</td>
<td>Puns, simple jokes that play off the sound rather than the meaning of a word, such as “Lettuce all go to the salad bar”</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>Adults, particularly well-educated ones</td>
<td>Satire, which makes fun of the weaknesses of people and society</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

27 Generally, children laugh more than adults. One study found that adults laugh 20 times a day, while children laugh 200 times!

The Secrets of Humor

28 Certain comedic devices turn up again and again in jokes, comic strips, and filmed entertainment—because they succeed.

29 “There were tricks,” said Hiestand of his days writing for The Tonight Show hosted by Johnny Carson, “things you would see, certain things always got laughs.” One of the most popular is often called the rule of threes. That is a pattern in which two nonfunny elements are followed by a third that is funny (yet still makes sense within the context). Many jokes start off with a list of three, such as “A rabbi, a lawyer, and a duck walk into a bar.” As the joke unfolds, the rabbi says something straightforward, then the lawyer does as well, but the duck finishes with something witty or absurd.

30 Three guys were stranded on an island. An antique lamp washed ashore. When the guys touched it, a genie came out. “I’ll grant each of you one wish,” the genie said. The first guy said, “I want to go home,” then disappeared. The second guy said, “I also want to go home,” and he too disappeared. The third man suddenly looked sad. He said, “I want my two friends back to keep me company.”

31 Certain concepts seem to be more amusing than others. If you tell any joke involving an animal, and it doesn't matter which one you use, think Donald and Daffy. In the LaughLab experiment, scientists determined that the funniest animal is the duck. (It's not arbitrary that a duck was used in the rule-of-threes joke.)
Do Tell—But Do It Right

There are also known techniques for telling jokes well.

• Keep it short—Don't include any details that are not necessary to bring you to the punch line. In the genie joke, there was no need to specify it was a tropical island or to name the castaways. The quicker you tell a joke, the funnier it will be.

• Be specific—Some comedians swear that a joke is funnier if you say "Aquafresh" instead of "toothpaste." The attention to detail makes the story seem more real.

• Keep a straight face—Deliver the joke deadpan, or without emotion. That way, any strangeness in the joke will seem even stranger because the person telling it doesn't seem to notice.

• Don't laugh at your own joke—Let your audience decide whether it is funny or foolish—or both.

Theories and techniques aside, much about humor remains a mystery. According to Hiestand, Carson many times said, "I don't understand what makes comedy a sure thing. There's no 100-percent surefire formula." Meanwhile, for most of us, laughter is never a problem. It does not need to be solved, just enjoyed.

Second Read

• Reread the essay to answer these text-dependent questions.
• Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

1. Key Ideas and Details: Why does laughter seem to qualify as a biological function? What might be the biological function of laughter?
2. Craft and Structure: In paragraph 7, what purpose does the sentence in parentheses serve?

3. Key Ideas and Details: As discussed in paragraphs 16–19, why is unplanned humor often funnier than planned humor?

4. Craft and Structure: What context clues in paragraph 21 help you understand the meaning of the word “retrospect”?

5. Key Ideas and Details: Based on paragraphs 26–27, what distinction can you make between what makes children laugh and what makes adults laugh? Why might children laugh more often than adults?

6. Key Ideas and Details: There are four known techniques for telling jokes well as explained in paragraph 32. How do the first two techniques relate to narrative writing?

7. Knowledge and Ideas: What is the author’s argument in this essay? Cite specific evidence from the text in your response.
Working from the Text
8. Referring back to the words and phrases you’ve underlined, write an objective summary of a section of the text by putting the main points into your own words. Remember that a summary is a broad overview of the text; stick to the main points by writing about big ideas and excluding smaller details.

Using Precise Diction to Analyze Humor
9. To analyze a text carefully, one must use specific words to describe the humor and explain the intended effect. Work collaboratively to define terms and to understand the nuances of words with similar denotations (definitions). You have already encountered some of these words.

Language and Writer’s Craft: Verbs

A verbal is a form of a verb that functions as something other than a verb. For example, a verbal might be used as a noun, an adjective, or an adverb.

An infinitive is the to form of a verb, such as to chuckle or to snort. Infinitives can be used as nouns, adjectives, or adverbs.

A participle is a verbal that is used as an adjective. There are present and past participles.

Present: giggling, snickering
Past: gnarled, destroyed
A gerund is a verbal that acts as a noun and ends in –ing. It can sometimes be difficult to tell the difference between a gerund and a present participle because both end in –ing. The key is to determine whether the word acts as an adjective or a noun.

Participle: The giggling child made lots of noise. Giggling is an adjective describing the noun child.

Gerund: His giggling was distracting. Giggling is the subject of the sentence, so it is a noun.

PRACTICE Review your response to question 7. Look for two sentences you could revise by using verbals.

Check Your Understanding

Reread “Made You Laugh” and write a paragraph summarizing the author’s arguments about what makes things funny.

Explanatory Writing Prompt

Create a detailed paragraph that uses precise diction to explain your sense of humor. Use at least two words each from the “Words to Describe Humor” and “Words to Describe a Response to Humor” charts. Explain what does and does not make you laugh and how you typically respond to humorous texts. Be sure to:

- Begin with a clear thesis statement explaining your sense of humor.
- Include some specific examples of things that make you laugh.
- Use at least one infinitive, one participle, and one gerund.
- Use verb tenses correctly and consistently.
Learning Targets
- Categorize humorous texts into levels of comedy.
- Write an analysis of how an artist creates humor.

Understanding Levels of Comedy
Comedy occurs in different ways.
1. Read and mark the text to indicate information that is new to you.

Low comedy refers to the type of humor that is focused primarily on the situation or series of events. It includes such things as physical mishaps, humor concerning the human body and its functions, coincidences, and humorous situations. With low comedy, the humor is straightforward and generally easy to follow and understand.

Since the primary purpose of most low comedy is to entertain, the action is frequently seen as hilarious or hysterical and the effect is often side-splitting laughter and guffaws. Many times, the characters are exaggerated caricatures rather than fully developed characters. These caricatures are often caught in unlikely situations or they become victims of circumstances seemingly beyond their control. Thus, the plot takes priority over the characters. Examples of low comedy might include Madea’s Family Reunion, Meet the Parents, and America’s Funniest Home Videos. Shakespeare’s comedies, such as A Midsummer Night’s Dream and Twelfth Night, are full of low comedy.

High comedy refers to the type of humor that is focused primarily on characters, dialogue, or ideas. It includes such things as clever wordplay, wit, and pointed remarks regarding larger issues. Many times, high comedy takes an irreverent or unconventional look at serious issues.

Sometimes the humor of high comedy is not immediately obvious; it can take a bit of reflection in order to realize the humorous intent. Frequently, the purpose of high comedy is to express an opinion, to persuade, or to promote deeper consideration of an idea. Often described as amusing, clever, or witty, high comedy typically results in chuckles, grins, and smiles rather than loud laughter. Clever use of language and interesting characters receive more attention than the circumstances that surround them. Examples of high comedy include Modern Family, The Middle, and, at times, The Simpsons. Shakespeare’s tragedies, such as Hamlet and Romeo and Juliet, also include instances of high comedy.

2. Why do we distinguish between different kinds of comedy?

3. With a partner, take notes to complete each chart on the next page. Brainstorm a strong example at each level of comedy.

Analyzing Humorous Texts

4. Brainstorm what you already know about comic strips and political cartoons. Think about format, audience, topics, descriptions of humor, intended effects, etc.

Comic Strips:

Political Cartoons:

5. Read and mark the text of the following definitions for information that is new to you:

Comic strips are meant primarily to entertain. They have a beginning and middle that lead to a humorous ending. They tend to be a low-level comedy that is easily understood by a wide audience.

Political cartoons deal with larger issues and are often meant to communicate a particular political or social message. They often have a single panel with a powerful statement to reinforce humor displayed through a picture (characters or symbols). They tend to be high-level comedy, appealing to a smaller population that is well-informed about a specific topic.

Check Your Understanding

In order to compare and contrast comics and political cartoons, create a Venn diagram that lists the characteristics of each. Are there any areas where they overlap?

Introducing the Strategy: RAFT

RAFT is an acronym that stands for role, audience, format, and topic. RAFT is a strategy that can be used for responding to and analyzing a text by identifying and examining its role, audience, format, and topic.

6. Use the graphic organizer and the RAFT strategy on the next page to analyze the humor in comics and political cartoons based on the previous definitions.
Writing to Sources: Explanatory Text

Think about your selected cartoon or comic. How does the author create humor? Write a paragraph explaining your answer. Be sure to:

- Establish a controlling idea that describes the humor and its effect.
- Include specific details from the cartoon or comic to support your ideas.
- Explain whether the cartoon or comic is high or low humor and why.
- Use precise diction to describe humor.

Learning Targets

- Analyze how authors convey humor in speech and writing.
- Write and present an oral reading of an original anecdote.
- Analyze the effect of verbals in a humorous text.

Humorous Anecdotes

1. Read the following information to see how the use of anecdotes applies to a study of humor.

   An anecdote is a brief, entertaining account of an incident or event. Often, anecdotes are shared because of their humorous nature, but anecdotes can also help illustrate larger ideas and concepts. Families sometimes share anecdotes about the humorous things family members have done. Frequently, the stories become more and more absurd as the details are exaggerated with each retelling.

2. Do you or your family have a humorous anecdote that is shared over and over? What is it? Why is it retold? Who tells it? How does it change over time?

Viewing a Humorous Monologue

The following monologue provides humorous accounts of somewhat ordinary events. Finding and describing the humor in the people, places, and events you encounter can enrich your conversations as well as your writing.

3. As you watch the clip for the first time, listen for different topics in the monologue and take notes.

| 4. Does the speaker’s tone shift? Record his attitude about the topic at the beginning of the monologue and if his attitude changes. How does he communicate this shift? |
Check Your Understanding
List three ways the comedian in the clip makes the audience laugh with a simple anecdote. Does he use his persona? people in the story? humorous events?

5. Discuss how you would describe the humor the comedian uses. What do you think is the intended response? During your discussion, be sure to:
   - Use precise diction to describe the humor.
   - Provide examples from the text to support your analysis.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR
Jon Scieszka (b. 1954) is the oldest of six brothers in his family. He became an elementary school teacher and found that his students liked the funny stories that he enjoyed telling. He has since published a number of children’s books, which are illustrated by his friend Lane Smith. In 2008, the Librarian of Congress named him National Ambassador for Young People’s Literature.

by Jon Scieszka

1. Brothers are the guys you stick with and stick up for.

2. The Scieszka brothers are scattered all over the country now, but we still get together once a year to play a family golf tournament. We named it after our dad, Lou, and his favorite car—his old Cadillac Coupe de Ville. It is the Coupe de Lou Classic. We all grew up playing golf, because Dad Lou, an elementary school principal, taught Junior Golf and gave us lessons during summers off. And I’m sure my brothers would want me to point out the amazing fact that I am the winner of both the very first Coupe de Lou 1983 and the latest Coupe de Lou 2004.

3 But of all the Scieszka brother memories, I believe it was a family car trip that gave us our finest moment of brotherhood. We were driving cross-country from Michigan to Florida, all of us, including the family cat (a guy cat, naturally), in the family station wagon. Somewhere mid-trip we stopped at one of those Stuckey’s rest-stop restaurants to eat and load up on Stuckey’s candy.

4 We ate lunch, ran around like maniacs in the warm sun, then packed back into the station wagon—Mom and Dad up front, Jim, Jon, Tom, Gregg, Brian, Jeff, and the cat in back. Somebody dropped his Stuckey’s Pecan Log Roll® on the floor. The cat found it and must have scarfed every bit of it, because two minutes later we heard that awful ack ack ack sound of a cat getting ready to barf.

5 The cat puked up the pecan nut log. Jeff, the youngest and smallest (and closest to the floor) was the first to go. He got one look and whiff of the pecan nut cat yack and blew his own sticky lunch all over the cat. The puke-covered cat jumped on Brian, Brian barfed on Gregg. Gregg upchucked on Tom. Tom burped a bit of Stuckey lunch back on Gregg. Jim and I rolled down the windows and hung out as far as we could, yelling in group puke horror.

6 Dad Lou didn’t know what had hit the back of the car. No time to ask questions. He just pulled off to the side of the road. All of the brothers—Jim, Jon, Tom, Gregg, Brian, and Jeff—spilled out of the puke wagon and fell in the grass, gagging and yelling and laughing until we couldn’t laugh anymore.

7 What does it all mean? What essential guy wisdom did I learn from this?

8 Stick with your brothers. Stick up for your brothers. And if you ever drop a pecan nut log in a car with your five brothers and your cat ... you will probably stick to your brothers.

Introducing the Strategy: TWIST
TWIST is an acronym for tone, word choice, imagery, style, and theme. This writing strategy helps a writer analyze each of these elements in a text in order to write a response to an analytical writing prompt about the text.

9. Reread the excerpt from “Brothers,” and use the TWIST strategy to guide your analysis of the text.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Acronym</th>
<th>Text: “Brothers” by Jon Scieszka</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Tone</td>
<td>What is the author’s attitude about the topic?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Word choice</td>
<td>What specific diction does the author use for effect?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Imagery</td>
<td>What specific descriptive details and figurative language does the author use for effect?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Style

How does the author use language to create humor?

What is the intended response the author hopes to achieve?

Theme

What is the central idea of this text?

What idea about life is the author trying to convey through humor?

10. Once you have found textual evidence from the text “Brothers,” and made an inference about the theme, you are ready to write an analytical topic sentence. State the title, author, and genre (TAG) in your thesis or topic sentence.

   For example:

   Jon Scieszka’s anecdote “Brothers” is a low-level comedy that uses a comic situation, exaggeration, and comic diction to reveal a universal truth about how brothers who laugh together stick together.

   Practice writing a topic sentence about the stand-up comedy using the TAG format.
Writing and Presenting Your Own Anecdote

11. Use the TWIST graphic organizer below to plan your own anecdote.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subject of Humorous Memory:</th>
<th>People/Places/Events:</th>

</tbody>
</table>

Tone:
What is your attitude about the topic? How will you convey that attitude?

Word Choice:
What specific diction can you use for effect?

Imagery:
What specific descriptive and figurative language can you use for effect?

Style:
How can you use language (diction and syntax) to create humor? What is the intended response you hope to achieve?

Theme:
What idea about life are you trying to convey through humor?
12. Draft your anecdote. Be sure to include a beginning, middle, and end. As you write your draft, think about using verbs. Study the material below to learn about using verbals.

13. Present an oral reading of your draft to a partner. After your partner presents, provide feedback relating to his or her ideas, organization, language, and the humorous effect.

Language and Writer’s Craft: Using Verbals

You have learned that a verbal is a verb form that does not function as a verb. Types of verbals are gerunds, participles, and infinitives. Writers use verbals for variety and effect. Look at these examples:

Golfing was an activity that the Scieszka family enjoyed. (Golfing is a gerund because it acts as a noun. It is the subject of the sentence.)

“Jim and I rolled down the windows and hung out as far as we could, yelling in group puke horror.” (Yelling is a present participle. It modifies Jim and I.)

“We still get together once a year to play a family golf tournament.” (To play is an infinitive. It functions as an adverb, modifying the verb get by answering the question “why.”)

PRACTICE In your Reader/Writer Notebook, write a brief summary of Joe Scieszka’s anecdote using one infinitive, one gerund, and one participle.

Writing to Sources: Explanatory Text

Select an anecdote in audio or visual format, or print a copy of the anecdote you read in this activity. Write a paragraph explaining the humor the author creates and its intended response. Be sure to:

- Clearly state how the anecdote uses the elements of humor.
- Include examples from the text to support your analysis.
- Use precise diction.
- Use participles, gerunds, and infinitives in your writing.
Finding Truth in Comedy

Learning Targets
• Collaborate to analyze a humorous essay in a Socratic Seminar.
• Write to explain how an author conveys universal truths through humor.

Preview
In this activity, you will read a humorous essay and think about how people use comedy to discuss serious or important topics.

Setting a Purpose for Reading
• As you read the essay, underline words and phrases that are intended to be humorous.
• Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.
• Place an exclamation point by text that deals with a universal truth.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR
Dave Barry (b. 1947) was a humor columnist for the Miami Herald until 2005. His work there won him the Pulitzer Prize for Commentary in 1988. He has also written novels and children’s books and continues to write articles for a variety of magazines. Much of Barry's work provides humorous commentary on current social issues.

Essay

i've got a few pet peeves about sea creatures

by Dave Barry

Chunk 1

1. Pets are good, because they teach children important lessons about life, the main one being that, sooner or later, life kicks the bucket.

2. With me, it was sooner. When I was a boy, my dad, who worked in New York City, would periodically bring home a turtle in a little plastic tank that had a little plastic island with a little plastic palm tree, as is so often found in natural turtle habitats. I was excited about having a pet, and I'd give the turtle a fun pet name like Scooter. But my excitement was not shared by Scooter, who, despite residing in a tropical paradise, never did anything except mope around.

3. Actually, he didn't even mope “around”: He moped in one place without moving, or even blinking, for days on end, displaying basically the same vital signs as an ashtray. Eventually I would realize—it wasn't easy to tell—that Scooter had passed on to that Big Pond in the Sky, and I'd bury him in the garden, where he'd decompose and become food for the zucchini, which in turn would be eaten by my dad, who would in turn go to New York City, where, compelled by powerful instincts that even he did not understand, he would buy me another moping death turtle. And so the cycle of life would repeat.

I say all this to explain why I recently bought fish for my 4-year-old daughter, Sophie. My wife and I realized how badly she wanted an animal when she found a beetle on the patio and declared that it was a pet, named Marvin. She put Marvin into a Tupperware container, where, under Sophie's loving care and feeding, he thrived for maybe nine seconds before expiring like a little six-legged parking meter. Fortunately, we have a beetle-intensive patio, so, unbeknownst to Sophie, we were able to replace Marvin with a parade of stand-ins of various sizes ("Look! Marvin has grown bigger!") "Wow! Today Marvin has grown smaller!"). But it gets to be tedious, going out early every morning to wrangle patio beetles. So we decided to go with fish.

I had fish of my own, years ago, and it did not go well. They got some disease like Mongolian Fin Rot, which left them basically just little pooping torsos. But I figured that today, with all the technological advances we have such as cellular phones and "digital" things and carbohydrate-free toothpaste, modern fish would be more reliable.

So we got an aquarium and prepared it with special water and special gravel and special fake plants and a special scenic rock so the fish would be intellectually stimulated and get into a decent college. When everything was ready I went to the aquarium store to buy fish, my only criteria being that they should be 1) hardy digital fish; and 2) fish that looked a LOT like other fish, in case God forbid we had to Marvinize them. This is when I discovered how complex fish society is. I'd point to some colorful fish and say, "What about these?" And the aquarium guy would say, "Those are great fish but they do get aggressive when they mate." And I'd say, "Like, how aggressive?" And he'd say, "They'll kill all the other fish."

This was a recurring theme. I'd point to some fish, and the aquarium guy would inform me that these fish could become aggressive if there were fewer than four of them, or an odd number of them, or it was a month containing the letter "R," or they heard the song "Who Let the Dogs Out." It turns out that an aquarium is a powder keg that can explode in deadly violence at any moment, just like the Middle East, or junior high school.

TRUE STORY: A friend of mine named David Shor told me that his kids had an aquarium containing a kind of fish called African cichlids, and one of them died. So David went to the aquarium store and picked out a replacement African cichlid, but the aquarium guy said he couldn't buy that one, and David asked why, and the guy said: "Because that one is from a different lake."

But getting back to my daughter's fish: After much thought, the aquarium guy was able to find me three totally pacifist fish—Barney Fife fish, fish so nonviolent that, in the wild, worms routinely beat them up and steal their lunch money. I brought these home, and so far they have not killed each other or died in any way. Plus, Sophie LOVES them. So everything is working out beautifully. I hope it stays that way, because I hate zucchini.

Check Your Understanding

In preparation for your Writing to Sources activity, discuss in a small group how you think Barry uses humor to express the universal truth in the story.

Writing to Sources: Explanatory Text

Write a paragraph that explains how Barry uses humor to convey a truth about life. Be sure to:

- Establish a clear controlling idea about conveying a truth.
- Cite specific evidence from the text.
- Use precise diction to describe humorous effects.
- Use verb tenses correctly and consistently.

Underfunded Schools Forced to Cut Past Tense from Language Programs from The Onion

1  WASHINGTON—Faced with ongoing budget crises, underfunded schools nationwide are increasingly left with no option but to cut the past tense—a grammatical construction traditionally used to relate all actions and states that have transpired at an earlier point in time—from their standard English and language arts programs.

2  A part of American school curricula for more than 200 years, the past tense was deemed by school administrators to be too expensive to keep in primary and secondary education.
“This was by no means an easy decision, but teaching our students how to conjugate verbs in a way that would allow them to describe events that have already occurred is a luxury that we can no longer afford,” Phoenix-area high school principal Sam Pennock said.

“With our current budget, the past tense must unfortunately become a thing of the past.”

In the most dramatic display of the new trend yet, the Tennessee Department of Education decided Monday to remove “-ed” endings from all of the state’s English classrooms, saving struggling schools an estimated $3 million each year. Officials say they plan to slowly phase out the tense by first eliminating the past perfect; once students have adjusted to the change, the past progressive, the past continuous, the past perfect progressive, and the simple past will be cut. Hundreds of school districts across the country are expected to follow suit.

“This is the end of an era,” said Alicia Reynolds, a school district director in Tuscaloosa, AL. “For some, reading and writing about things not immediately taking place was almost as much a part of school as history class and social studies.”

“That is, until we were forced to drop history class and social studies a couple of months ago,” Reynolds added.

Nevertheless, a number of educators are coming out against the cuts, claiming that the embattled verb tense, while outmoded, still plays an important role in the development of today’s youth.

“Much like art and music, the past tense provides students with a unique and consistent outlet for self-expression,” South Boston English teacher David Floen said. “Without it I fear many of our students will lack a number of important creative skills. Like being able to describe anything that happened earlier in the day.”

Despite concerns that cutting the past tense will prevent graduates from communicating effectively in the workplace, the home, the grocery store, church, and various other public spaces, a number of lawmakers, such as Utah Sen. Orrin Hatch, have welcomed the cuts as proof that the American school system is taking a more forward-thinking approach to education. “Our tax dollars should be spent preparing our children for the future, not for what has already happened,” Hatch said at a recent press conference. “It’s about time we stopped wasting everyone’s time with who ‘did’ what or ‘went’ where. The past tense is, by definition, outdated.” Said Hatch, “I can’t even remember the last time I had to use it.”

Past-tense instruction is only the latest school program to face the chopping block. School districts in California have been forced to cut addition and subtraction from their math departments, while nearly all high schools have reduced foreign language courses to only the most basic phrases, including “May I please use the bathroom?” and “No, I do not want to go to the beach with Maria and Juan.” Some legislators are even calling for an end to teaching grammar itself, saying that in many inner-city school districts, where funding is most lacking, students rarely use grammar at all.

Regardless of the recent upheaval, students throughout the country are learning to accept, and even embrace, the change to their curriculum.

“At first I think the decision to drop the past tense from class is ridiculous, and I feel very upset by it,” said David Keller, a seventh-grade student at Hampstead School in Fort Meyers, FL. “But now, it’s almost like it never happens.”

Writing an Analytical Paragraph
When writing about texts, use the “literary present” (e.g., “The article states ...,” not “The article stated ...”).

Also, remember to maintain coherence in your writing. Using a well-chosen transition word or phrase can help show the relationship (connection) between the ideas in your writing. The following is a list of commonly used transitional words and phrases.
Check Your Understanding

Which instances of satire in the article do you think went the furthest to make the author’s point? Why? Discuss with a partner.

Writing to Sources: Explanatory Text

Analyze how the text about underfunded schools uses satirical humor to expose human vice or folly. Be sure to:

- Establish and support a controlling idea.
- Use transitions to create cohesion and clarify the relationships among ideas and concepts.
- Use precise diction and maintain a formal style.
- Support your analysis with evidence from the text.
Learning Targets
- Define and recognize comic characters and caricatures.
- Collaborate to analyze characters and caricatures in a literary text.

Comic Caricatures and Characters
Characterization is the way a writer reveals a character’s personality through what the character says, thinks, and feels or through how the character looks, acts, or interacts with others.

A caricature is a pictorial, written, and/or acted representation of a person who exaggerates characteristics or traits for comic effect. Caricatures are often used in cartoon versions of people’s faces and usually exaggerate features for comic effect.

In this activity, you will read a short story and think about the author’s use of characterization.

Setting a Purpose for Reading

- As you read the short story, underline words and phrases that reveal something about Nuttel and the niece.
- Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Hector Hugh Munro (1870–1916), better known by the pen name Saki, was a British writer and satirist known for his masterful short stories poking fun at Edwardian society. His witty and intelligent stories are considered among the best the genre has to offer.

Short Story

The Open Window

by Saki (H. H. Munro)

1. “My aunt will be down presently, Mr. Nuttel,” said a very self-possessed young lady of fifteen; “in the meantime you must try and put up with me.”

2. Framton Nuttel endeavoured to say the correct something which should dually flatter the niece of the moment without unduly discounting the aunt that was to come. Privately he doubted more than ever whether these formal visits on a succession of total strangers would do much towards helping the nerve cure which he was supposed to be undergoing.

3. “I know how it will be,” his sister had said when he was preparing to migrate to this rural retreat; “you will bury yourself down there and not speak to a living soul, and your nerves will be worse than ever from moping. I shall just give you letters of introduction to all the people I know there. Some of them, as far as I can remember, were quite nice.”

4. Framton wondered whether Mrs. Sappleton, the lady to whom he was presenting one of the letters of introduction, came into the nice division.

5. “Do you know many of the people round here?” asked the niece, when she judged that they had had sufficient silent communion.
“Hardly a soul,” said Framton. “My sister was staying here, at the rectory, you know, some four years ago, and she gave me letters of introduction to some of the people here.”

He made the last statement in a tone of distinct regret.

“Then you know practically nothing about my aunt?” pursued the self-possessed young lady.

“Only her name and address,” admitted the caller. He was wondering whether Mrs. Sappleton was in the married or widowed state. An undefinable something about the room seemed to suggest masculine habitation.

“Her great tragedy happened just three years ago,” said the child; “that would be since your sister’s time.”

“Her tragedy?” asked Framton; somehow in this restful country spot tragedies seemed out of place.

“You may wonder why we keep that window wide open on an October afternoon,” said the niece, indicating a large French window that opened on to a lawn.

“It is quite warm for the time of the year,” said Framton; “but has that window got anything to do with the tragedy?”

“Out through that window, three years ago to a day, her husband and her two young brothers went off for their day’s shooting. They never came back. In crossing the moor to their favourite snipe-shooting ground they were all three engulfed in a treacherous piece of bog. It had been that dreadful wet summer, you know, and places that were safe in other years gave way suddenly without warning. Their bodies were never recovered. That was the dreadful part of it.” Here the child’s voice lost its self-possessed note and became falteringly human. “Poor aunt always thinks that they will come back some day, they and the little brown spaniel that was lost with them, and walk in at that window just as they used to do. That is why the window is kept open every evening till it is quite dusk. Poor dear aunt, she has often told me how they went out, her husband with his white waterproof coat over his arm, and Ronnie, her youngest brother, singing ‘Bertie, why do you bound?’ as he always did to tease her, because she said it got on her nerves. Do you know, sometimes on still, quiet evenings like this, I almost get a creepy feeling that they will all walk in through that window—”

She broke off with a little shudder. It was a relief to Framton when the aunt bustled into the room with a whirl of apologies for being late in making her appearance.

“I hope Vera has been amusing you?” she said.

“She has been very interesting,” said Framton.

“I hope you don’t mind the open window,” said Mrs. Sappleton briskly; “my husband and brothers will be home directly from shooting, and they always come in this way. They’ve been out for snipe in the marshes to-day, so they’ll make a fine mess over my poor carpets. So like you men-folk, isn’t it?”

She rattled on cheerfully about the shooting and the scarcity of birds, and the prospects for duck in the winter. To Framton it was all purely horrible. He made a desperate but only partially successful effort to turn the talk on to a less ghastly topic; he was conscious that his hostess was giving him only a fragment of her attention, and her eyes were constantly straying past him to the open window and the lawn beyond. It was certainly an unfortunate coincidence that he should have paid his visit on this tragic anniversary.

“The doctors agree in ordering me complete rest, an absence of mental excitement, and avoidance of anything in the nature of violent physical exercise,” announced Framton, who laboured under the tolerably wide-spread delusion that total strangers and chance acquaintances are hungry for the least detail of one’s ailments and infirmities, their cause and cure. “On the matter of diet they are not so much in agreement,” he continued.

21 “No?” said Mrs. Sappleton, in a voice which only replaced a yawn at the last moment. Then she suddenly brightened into alert attention—but not to what Framton was saying.

22 “Here they are at last!” she cried. “Just in time for tea, and don’t they look as if they were muddy up to the eyes!”

23 Framton shivered slightly and turned towards the niece with a look intended to convey sympathetic comprehension. The child was staring out through the open window with dazed horror in her eyes. In a chill shock of nameless fear Framton swung round in his seat and looked in the same direction.

24 In the deepening twilight three figures were walking across the lawn towards the window; they all carried guns under their arms, and one of them was additionally burdened with a white coat hung over his shoulders. A tired brown spaniel kept close at their heels. Noiselessly they neared the house, and then a hoarse young voice chanted out of the dusk: “I said, Bertie, why do you bound?”

25 Framton grabbed wildly at his stick and hat; the hall-door, the gravel-drive, and the front gate were dimly-noted stages in his headlong retreat. A cyclist coming along the road had to run into the hedge to avoid an imminent collision.

26 “Here we are, my dear,” said the bearer of the white mackintosh, coming in through the window; “fairly muddy, but most of it’s dry. Who was that who bolted out as we came up?”

27 “A most extraordinary man, a Mr. Nuttel,” said Mrs. Sappleton; “could only talk about his illnesses, and dashed off without a word of good-bye or apology when you arrived. One would think he had seen a ghost."

28 “I expect it was the spaniel,” said the niece calmly; “he told me he had a horror of dogs. He was once hunted into a cemetery somewhere on the banks of the Ganges by a pack of pariah dogs, and had to spend the night in a newly dug grave with the creatures snarling and grinning and foaming just above him. Enough to make anyone lose their nerve.”

29 Romance at short notice was her speciality.

Second Read

- Reread the short story to answer these text-dependent questions.
- Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

3. Key Ideas and Details: Why is it significant that Framton Nuttel is described as undergoing a “nerve cure” in paragraph 2? Predict how this detail could be used for humorous effect.

4. Craft and Structure: What phrase in paragraph 3 helps you understand what “moping” means?
5. Craft and Structure: What is the meaning of the word “habitation” in paragraph 9? What clues in the text leading up to and including paragraph 9 support your response?

6. Key Ideas and Details: What tone does the niece convey with her description of the “tragedy” in paragraph 14? What effect might this precise detail have on her guest?

7. Craft and Structure: What context clues tell you the meaning of the word “bog” in paragraph 14?

8. Key Ideas and Details: Why is it “horrible” for Framton to listen to Mrs. Sappleton as noted in paragraph 19?

9. Craft and Structure: What is the meaning of the word “ailments” in paragraph 20? What clues in the text support your response?

10. Key Ideas and Details: What does the author tell the reader in his narration that makes Framton Nuttel appear silly and pathetic in paragraph 20? Why?

11. Key Ideas and Details: Why is Nuttel’s reaction to the return of the men in paragraph 25 comic rather than appropriate?

12. Key Ideas and Details: What aspects of the niece’s character are revealed in her last line of dialogue in paragraph 28?

Elements of Humor

Explaining why something is funny can be a challenge, but there are some common things authors do that usually make people laugh. Writers create humor by focusing on descriptions and actions that make characters funny, comic situations, and comic language. Humor often depends on some combination of these three elements.

16. Preview the Elements of Humor graphic organizer in Activity 4.11 and add notes about the comic characters and caricatures you explored in this activity. After you explore each new element of humor in the upcoming activities, return to this graphic organizer to add notes about new learning.

Check Your Understanding

Mr. Nuttel might be considered a caricature of a nervous person. Find examples in the story that support this idea and note them in your Reader/Writer Notebook.
Elements of Humor: Comic Situations

ACTIVITY 4.8

LEARNING STRATEGIES:
Graphic Organizer, Note-taking, Think-Pair-Share, Marking the Text, Discussion Groups

Literary Terms

_Irony_ is a literary device that plays on readers’ expectations by portraying events in a way that is actually different from reality.

Learning Targets
- Investigate how humor is created by comic situations.
- Analyze comic situations in a literary text collaboratively.
- Determine the impact of word choice on meaning and tone in a comic situation.

Comic situations can be created in many different ways:
- by placing a character in an unlikely situation in which he or she obviously does not belong
- by portraying characters as victims of circumstances who are surprised by unusual events and react in a comical way
- by creating situational irony where there is contrast between what characters or readers might reasonably expect to happen and what actually happens

1. While you watch a film clip, think about how the situation contributes to the humor.
2. As you view the clip a second time, take notes using the graphic organizer below.

In this activity, you will read an excerpt from a novel and think about the author’s use of irony to create comic situations.

Setting a Purpose for Reading
- As you read the excerpt, underline words and phrases that explain what is happening in the plot.
- Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.
- Place a “D” by examples of dialect.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR
Born Samuel Langhorne Clemens, Mark Twain (1835–1910) was an American author and humorist. He is noted for his novels The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn (1885), called “the Great American Novel,” and The Adventures of Tom Sawyer (1876). He has been lauded as the “greatest American humorist of his age,” and William Faulkner called Twain “the father of American literature.”

Novel
FROM
The Adventures of TOM SAWYER
by Mark Twain
“A DAY’S WORK”

Chunk 1
1 SATURDAY morning was come, and all the summer world was bright and fresh, and brimming with life. There was a song in every heart; and if the heart was young the music issued at the lips. There was cheer in every face and a spring in every step. The locust-trees were in bloom and the fragrance of the blossoms filled the air. Cardiff Hill, beyond the village and above it, was green with vegetation and it lay just far enough away to seem a Delectable Land, dreamy, reposeful, and inviting.

Chunk 2
2 Tom appeared on the sidewalk with a bucket of whitewash and a long-handled brush. He surveyed the fence, and all gladness left him and a deep melancholy settled down upon his spirit. Thirty yards of board fence nine feet high. Life to him seemed hollow, and existence but a burden. Sighing, he dipped his brush and passed it along the topmost plank; repeated the operation; did it again; compared the insignificant whitewashed streak with the far-reaching continent of unwhitewashed fence, and sat down on a tree-box discouraged. Jim came skipping out at the gate with a tin pail, and singing Buffalo Gals. Bringing water from the town pump had always been hateful.
work in Tom’s eyes, before, but now it did not strike him so. He remembered that there was company at the pump. White, mulatto, and negro boys and girls were always there waiting their turns, resting, trading playthings, quarrelling, fighting, skylarking. And he remembered that although the pump was only a hundred and fifty yards off, Jim never got back with a bucket of water under an hour—and even then somebody generally had to go after him. Tom said:

Chunk 3

3 “Say, Jim, I’ll fetch the water if you’ll whitewash some.”

4 Jim shook his head and said:

5 “Can’t, Mars Tom. Ole missis, she tole me I got to go an’ git dis water an’ not stop foolin’ roun’ wid anybody. She say she spec’ Mars Tom gwine to ax me to whitewash, an’ so she tole me go ‘long an’ ‘tend to my own business—she ‘lowed SHE’D ‘tend to de whitewashin’.”

6 “Oh, never you mind what she said, Jim. That’s the way she always talks. Gimme the bucket—I won’t be gone only a minute. SHE won’t ever know.”

7 “Oh, I dasn’t, Mars Tom. Ole missis she’d take an’ tar de head off’n me. ’Deed she would.”

8 “SHE! She never licks anybody—whacks ’em over the head with her thimble—and who cares for that, I’d like to know. She talks awful, but talk don’t hurt—anyways it don’t if she don’t cry. Jim, I’ll give you a marvel. I’ll give you a white alley!”

9 Jim began to waver.

10 “White alley, Jim! And it’s a bully taw.”

11 “My! Dat’s a mighty gay marvel, I tell you! But Mars Tom I’s powerful ’fraid ole missis—”

12 “And besides, if you will I’ll show you my sore toe.”

13 Jim was only human—this attraction was too much for him. He put down his pail, took the white alley, and bent over the toe with absorbing interest while the bandage was being unwound. In another moment he was flying down the street with his pail and a tingling rear, Tom was whitewashing with vigor, and Aunt Polly was retiring from the field with a slipper in her hand and triumph in her eye.

14 But Tom’s energy did not last. He began to think of the fun he had planned for this day, and his sorrows multiplied. Soon the free boys would come tripping along on all sorts of delicious expeditions, and they would make a world of fun of him for having to work—the very thought of it burnt him like fire. He got out his worldly wealth and examined it—bits of toys, marbles, and trash; enough to buy an exchange of WORK, maybe, but not half enough to buy so much as half an hour of pure freedom. So he returned his straitened means to his pocket, and gave up the idea of trying to buy the boys. At this dark and hopeless moment an inspiration burst upon him! Nothing less than a great, magnificent inspiration.

Chunk 4

15 He took up his brush and went tranquilly to work. Ben Rogers hove in sight presently—the very boy, of all boys, whose ridicule he had been dreading. Ben’s gait was the hop-skip-and-jump—proof enough that his heart was light and his anticipations high. He was eating an apple, and giving a long, melodious whoop, at intervals, followed by a deep-toned ding-dong-dong, ding-dong-dong, for he was personating a steamboat. As he drew near, he slackened speed, took the middle of the street, leaned far over to starboard and rounded to ponderously and with laborious pomp and circumstance—for he was personating the Big Missouri, and considered himself to be drawing nine feet of water. He was boat and captain and engine-bells combined, so he had to imagine himself standing on his own hurricane-deck giving the orders and executing them:

16 “Stop her, sir! Ting-a-ling-ling!” The headway ran almost out, and he drew up slowly toward the sidewalk.

17 “Ship up to back! Ting-a-ling-ling!” His arms straightened and stiffened down his sides.

18 “Set her back on the stabboard! Ting-a-ling-ling! Chow! ch-chow-wow! Chow!” His right hand, mean-time, describing stately circles—for it was representing a forty-foot wheel.

19 “Let her go back on the labboard! Ting-a-ling-ling! Chow-ch-chow-chow!” The left hand began to describe circles.

20 “Stop the stabboard! Ting-a-ling-ling! Stop the labboard! Come ahead on the stabboard! Stop her! Let your outside turn over slow! Ting-a-ling-ling! Chow-ow-ow! Get out that head-line! LIVELY now! Come—out with your spring-line—what're you about there! Take a turn round that stump with the bight of it! Stand by that stage, now—let her go! Done with the engines, sir! Ting-a-ling-ling! S'H’T! S’H’T! S'H’T!” (trying the gauge-cocks).

21 Tom went on whitewashing—paid no attention to the steamboat. Ben stared a moment and then said: “Hi-YI! YOU’RE up a stump, ain’t you!”

Chunk 5

22 No answer. Tom surveyed his last touch with the eye of an artist, then he gave his brush another gentle sweep and surveyed the result, as before. Ben ranged up alongside of him. Tom’s mouth watered for the apple, but he stuck to his work. Ben said:

23 “Hello, old chap, you got to work, hey?”

24 Tom wheeled suddenly and said:

25 “Why, it’s you, Ben! I warn’t noticing.”

26 “Say—I’m going in a-swimming, I am. Don’t you wish you could? But of course you’d druther WORK—wouldn’t you? Course you would!”

27 Tom contemplated the boy a bit, and said:

28 “What do you call work?”

29 “Why, ain’t THAT work?”

30 Tom resumed his whitewashing, and answered carelessly:

31 “Well, maybe it is, and maybe it ain’t. All I know, is, it suits Tom Sawyer.”

32 “Oh come, now, you don’t mean to let on that you LIKE it?”

33 The brush continued to move.

34 “Like it? Well, I don’t see why I oughtn’t to like it. Does a boy get a chance to whitewash a fence every day?”

35 That put the thing in a new light. Ben stopped nibbling his apple. Tom swept his brush daintily back and forth—stepped back to note the effect—added a touch here and there—criticized the effect again—Ben watching every move and getting more and more interested, more and more absorbed. Presently he said:

36 “Say, Tom, let ME whitewash a little.”

37 Tom considered, was about to consent; but he altered his mind:
“No—no—I reckon it wouldn’t hardly do, Ben. You see, Aunt Polly’s awful particular about this fence—right here on the street, you know—but if it was the back fence I wouldn’t mind and SHE wouldn’t. Yes, she’s awful particular about this fence; it’s got to be done very careful; I reckon there ain’t one boy in a thousand, maybe two thousand, that can do it the way it’s got to be done.”

“No—is that so? Oh come, now—lemme just try. Only just a little—I’d let YOU, if you was me, Tom.”

“Ben, I’d like to, honest injun; but Aunt Polly—well, Jim wanted to do it, but she wouldn’t let him; Sid wanted to do it, and she wouldn’t let Sid. Now don’t you see how I’m fixed? If you was to tackle this fence and anything was to happen to it—”

“Oh, shucks, I’ll be just as careful. Now lemme try. Say—I’ll give you the core of my apple.”

“Well, here—No, Ben, now don’t. I’m afeard—”

“I’ll give you ALL of it!”

Tom gave up the brush with reluctance in his face, but alacrity in his heart. And while the late steamer Big Missouri worked and sweated in the sun, the retired artist sat on a barrel in the shade close by, dangled his legs, munched his apple, and planned the slaughter of more innocents. There was no lack of material; boys happened along every little while; they came to jeer, but remained to whitewash. By the time Ben was fagged out, Tom had traded the next chance to Billy Fisher for a kite, in good repair; and when he played out, Johnny Miller bought in for a dead rat and a string to swing it with—and so on, and so on, hour after hour. And when the middle of the afternoon came, from being a poor poverty-stricken boy in the morning, Tom was literally rolling in wealth. He had besides the things before mentioned, twelve marbles, part of a jews-harp, a piece of blue bottle-glass to look through, a spool cannon, a key that wouldn’t unlock anything, a fragment of chalk, a glass stopper of a decanter, a tin soldier, a couple of tadpoles, six firecrackers, a kitten with only one eye, a brass door-knob, a dog-collar—but no dog—the handle of a knife, four pieces of orange-peel, and a dilapidated old window sash.
5. Craft and Structure: One of the notable characteristics of Twain’s style is his use of verbals. Examine paragraph 2 and highlight all the verbals.

6. Key Ideas and Details: How does Tom try to get Jim to help him in Chunk 3? Why does he fail?

7. Craft and Structure: How does Twain use steamboat jargon for effect in Chunk 4?

8. Key Ideas and Details: Tom tries to manipulate his friends into doing whitewashing for him. How does he change his plan in Chunk 5 after Jim’s refusal to help?

9. Craft and Structure: What does the word “alacrity” mean in paragraph 44? Cite the text to support your response.

10. Craft and Structure: What is the intended effect of listing Tom’s “treasures” in such great detail in paragraph 44? What does the audience understand about the value of these things that is different from Tom’s point of view?
Working from the Text

11. Review the definition of dialect on page 297. Referencing the words and phrases you have already marked with a “D,” try to paraphrase a few lines of dialogue in My Notes.

12. Prepare for a collaborative discussion by annotating and reviewing the text as follows:
   - Review what you have already underlined as the plot and make changes as needed. Be prepared to paraphrase (retell in your own words) the plot.
   - Place a question mark next to any word or idea you would like to clarify (discuss to remove confusion).
   - Place a star next to any part of the text you would like to analyze (share an inference, assumption, prediction based on the text).

13. On a separate piece of paper or in your Reader/Writer Notebook, create a graphic organizer like the one below to answer comprehension questions about the story.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Tom is like a ... (create a simile)</th>
<th>It is ironic that ...</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The part of the story that stands out in my head is ... (draw a picture)</td>
<td>I wonder ...</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>This is a comedic situation because ...</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
14. What is the level of comedy of this text? What is a universal truth, or theme, of this text? Write a thematic statement. Be sure to support your ideas with textual evidence.

Twain – “All in a Day’s Work”

Level of Comedy:

Theme subject(s):

Theme statement:

Check Your Understanding

In your Reader/Writer Notebook, record three specific comic situations from the text. Share them with a partner.

Writing to Sources: Explanatory Text

Explain how Mark Twain uses comic characters and situations to convey a universal truth through humor. Be sure to:

- Establish a controlling idea and support it with textual evidence and commentary.
- Use transitions to create cohesion and clarify the relationships among ideas and concepts.
- Use precise diction and maintain a formal style.
- Use verbals.

Elements of Humor

Add your notes about comic situations to the Elements of Humor graphic organizer in Activity 4.11.

INDEPENDENT READING LINK

Read and Research

Research other humorous works by Mark Twain. Choose one of these works and create a one-paragraph summary of a comic situation in your Reader/Writer Notebook. Note the level of comedy and identify the theme statement.
Language Checkpoint: Recognizing Frequently Confused Words

Learning Targets

• Understand the difference between the frequently confused words its/it’s, your/you’ re, and their/they’ re/there.
• Use frequently confused words correctly when writing and editing.

Recognizing Frequently Confused Words

In English, some of the most frequently confused words are its, your, and their and it’s, you’re, and they’re. The adverb there is also frequently misused.

1. Quickwrite: Why do you think a writer might confuse these words?

2. Read the following sentences from The Adventures of Tom Sawyer:

   He [Tom] remembered that there was company at the pump...[B]oys and girls were always there waiting their turns, resting, trading playthings, quarrelling, fighting, skylarking.

   What does each underlined word refer to?

   there: ___________________
   their: ___________________

Understanding Possessive Determiners

Quick Guide to Possessive Determiners

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Determiner</th>
<th>Sentence</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>your</td>
<td>Thank you for letting me borrow your book about Mark Twain.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>its</td>
<td>I didn’t know the word “straitened,” so I read its meaning in the margin.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>their</td>
<td>The characters give Tom their prized possessions for a chance to paint.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Possessive determiners are words that show to whom something belongs. Writers use possessive determiners—which include the words my, your, his, her, its, our, and their—to make sentences more cohesive and less repetitive. For this reason, the sentence “Tom worked very hard, so Tom’s energy did not last” is not typical. The more typical version of the sentence would be “Tom worked very hard, so his energy did not last.”

3. Work with a partner to revise the following sentences to include possessive determiners.

   a. Tom, give me Tom’s paintbrush!
      Revised: _______________________________________
   b. The children shared the children’s wealth.
      Revised: _______________________________________
   c. The fence got the fence’s paint, and all was well.
      Revised: _______________________________________

4. Take turns with your partner to read each pair of sentences aloud. How do the two versions sound different? Which sounds clearer? Why?

Understanding Contractions

A contraction is a shortened word, or two words spliced together, with an apostrophe. Writers use contractions to add variety to their sentences, or to create more realistic dialogue.
Quick Guide to Contractions

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Phrase</th>
<th>Contraction</th>
<th>Sample Sentence</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>you are</td>
<td>you’re</td>
<td>You’re a clever boy, Tom Sawyer!</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it is</td>
<td>it’s</td>
<td>It’s a nice summer day.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>they are</td>
<td>they’re</td>
<td>They’re doing Tom’s work for him.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

5. Mark Twain uses several contractions in The Adventures of Tom Sawyer to show the dialect of the characters. With your partner, scan the passage in Activity 4.8 and find examples of the following contractions. The chunks have been provided to narrow your search. Write the quotes in the chart. Then rewrite each sentence to include both words in the contraction.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Contraction</th>
<th>Quote</th>
<th>Expanded Sentence</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>it’s</td>
<td>[Chunk 3]</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you’re</td>
<td>[Chunk 4]</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

6. Take turns with your partner to read the sentences aloud. How do the two versions sound different? How does the character change when you change his or her speech?

Revising

Read the following paragraph from a student’s essay. Choose the word that belongs in each sentence.

The Adventures of Tom Sawyer is a hilarious story that [your/you’re] bound to like. Even though [its/it’s] old, I found it entertaining. [Its/It’s] central character is, of course, Tom Sawyer. Tom is a young boy who has to whitewash his aunt’s fence one beautiful summer morning. He hates doing that chore, and he worries about what his friends will say when they pass by on [their/they’re/there] way to play and have fun. Tom thinks [its/it’s] unfair that he has to do work while [their/they’re/there] free to roam about, so he comes up with a plan. As they walk by, he pretends he is having a good time painting the fence, and [their/they’re/there] missing out. This tactic gets them to give Tom [their/they’re/there] possessions in exchange for a chance to paint. He doesn't have to do the work, and he gets a lot of stuff he likes. Tom might not be [your/you're] favorite person, but no one can deny that he is clever.

Compare your choices with a partner’s. Did you make the same choices? Work together to resolve any differences.

Check Your Understanding

What question(s) can you ask yourself whenever you write to be sure that you have used the word or contraction you meant to use? Add the question(s) to your Editor’s Checklist.

Practice

Reread the explanatory essay you wrote in Activity 4.8. Highlight each instance where you wrote the following words and determine whether or not you selected the correct word in each case.

your, you’re, its, it’s, their, they’re, there
Learning Targets
- Analyze the effect of hyperbole in poetry.
- Identify hyperbole in previously studied print and nonprint texts.

Understanding Hyperbole
1. Finish the lines using hyperbolic language. The first line is shown as an example.
   - My dog is so big, he beeps when he backs up.
   - I’m so hungry, I could eat a ________________________.
   - My cat is so smart that ___________________________.
   - She was so funny that ____________________________.

Preview
In this activity, you will read poems and think about the authors’ use of hyperbole.

Setting a Purpose for Reading
- As you read the poem, underline words and phrases that demonstrate hyperbole.
- Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.
- Mark lines you find humorous or strange with an exclamation point.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR
Carl Sandburg (1878–1967) was a journalist who also wrote poetry, novels, and historical books. He is perhaps best known as a poet, although his biography Abraham Lincoln: The War Years won a Pulitzer Prize.

Poetry
“They Have Yarns”

by Carl Sandburg

They have yarns
Of a skyscraper so tall they had to put hinges
On the two top stories so to let the moon go by,
Of one corn crop in Missouri when the roots
Went so deep and drew off so much water
The Mississippi riverbed that year was dry,
Of pancakes so thin they had only one side,
Of “a fog so thick we shingled the barn and six feet out on the fog,”
Of Pecos Pete straddling a cyclone in Texas and riding it to the west coast where “it rained out under him,”
Of the man who drove a swarm of bees across the Rocky Mountains and the Desert “and didn’t lose a bee,”
Of a mountain railroad curve where the engineer in his cab can touch the caboose and spit in the conductor’s eye,
Of the boy who climbed a cornstalk growing so fast he would have starved to death if they hadn’t shot biscuits up to him,
Of the old man’s whiskers: “When the wind was with him his whiskers arrived a day before he did,”
Of the hen laying a square egg and cackling, “Ouch!” and of hens laying eggs with the dates printed on them,
Of the ship captain’s shadow: it froze to the deck one cold winter night,
Of mutineers on that same ship put to chipping rust with rubber hammers,
Of the sheep counter who was fast and accurate: “I just count their feet and divide by four,”
Of the man so tall he must climb a ladder to shave himself,
Of the runt so teeny-weeny it takes two men and a boy to see him,
Of mosquitoes: one can kill a dog, two of them a man,
Of a cyclone that sucked cookstoves out of the kitchen, up the chimney flue, and on to the next town,
Of the same cyclone picking up wagon-tracks in Nebraska and dropping them over in the Dakotas,
Of the hook-and-eye snake unlocking itself into forty pieces, each piece two inches long, then in nine seconds flat snapping itself together again,
Of the watch swallowed by the cow—when they butchered her a year later the watch was running and had the correct time,
Of horned snakes, hoop snakes that roll themselves where they want to go, and rattlesnakes carrying bells instead of rattles on their tails,
Of the herd of cattle in California getting lost in a giant redwood tree that had hollowed out,
Of the man who killed a snake by putting its tail in its mouth so it swallowed itself,
Of railroad trains whizzing along so fast they reach the station before the whistle,
Of pigs so thin the farmer had to tie knots in their tails to keep them from crawling through the cracks in their pen,
Of Paul Bunyan’s big blue ox, Babe, measuring between the eyes forty-two ax-handles and a plug of Star tobacco exactly,
Of John Henry’s hammer and the curve of its swing and his singing of it as “a rainbow round my shoulder.”

Content Connections
One of the fantastic events in this poem deals with an event common to meteorology: a cyclone. A cyclone is a large, powerful, and destructive storm with high winds turning in an area of low pressure.

Grammar & Usage
Participial Phrases
In previous activities you learned that a participle is an –ing or –ed form of a verb that acts as an adjective. A participial phrase is made up of a participle plus any modifiers or complements the participle has. A participial phrase modifies a noun or pronoun.
Consider these examples from the poem:
“a cornstalk growing so fast”
“the dates printed on them”
“rattlesnakes carrying bells instead of rattles on their tails”
As you read, look for other examples of participial phrases. Note which noun or pronoun each participial phrase modifies.

Elements of Humor: Hyperbole

Second Read
• Reread the poem to answer these text-dependent questions.
• Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

2. Knowledge and Ideas: Reference the text and choose three of the yarns. Identify the real things they exaggerate. Provide examples of hyperbole related to these real things by citing the text.

3. Key Ideas and Details: What allusions does the author use? How might this add to the humor?

Working from the Text
4. Review the definitions of hyperbole and yarn on page 306. Based on Sandburg’s poem, how might a yarn relate to a hyperbole?
5. In a collaborative discussion, share the lines you underlined as demonstrating hyperbole, the unknown words and phrases you circled, and the lines you marked as funny or strange.
6. Using the My Notes section on page 307, add a line or two to Sandburg’s poem, using hyperbolic language and a participial adjective phrase. Consider using an allusion for humorous effect. Note how each line of hyperbole begins the same way.
7. Place a “V” next to lines in the text that contain verbals.

Setting a Purpose for Reading
• As you read the poem, underline words and phrases that demonstrate hyperbole.
• Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.
• Mark lines you find humorous or strange with an exclamation point.
ABOUT THE AUTHOR
Ted Hughes (1930–1998) is considered to be one of the twentieth century’s greatest poets. He wrote almost 90 books during his long career and won numerous prizes and fellowships. In 1984, he was appointed England’s poet laureate.

Poetry

“Mooses”

by Ted Hughes

The goofy Moose, the walking house frame,
Is lost
In the forest. He bumps, he blunders, he stands.

With massy bony thoughts sticking out near his ears—
Reaching out palm upwards, to catch whatever might be falling from heaven—
He tries to think,
Leaning their huge weight
On the lectern of his front legs.
He can’t find the world!
Where did it go? What does a world look like?

The Moose
Crashes on, and crashes into a lake, and stares at the mountain and cries:
‘Where do I belong? This is no place!’

He turns dragging half the lake out after him
And charges the crackling underbrush

He meets another Moose
He stares, he thinks: ‘It’s only a mirror!’
Where is the world?’ he groans. ‘O my lost world!
And why am I so ugly?
‘And why am I so far away from my feet?’

Literary Terms
Alliteration is the repetition of consonant sounds at the beginnings of words that are close together.

My Notes
He weeps.
Hopeless drops drip from his droopy lips.
The other Moose just stands there doing the same.
Two dopes of the deep woods.

Second Read
- Reread the poem to answer these text-dependent questions.
- Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

8. Craft and Structure: Look for examples of parallel structure and repetition in the poem. How do these stylistic choices make the moose appear “goofy”?

9. Key Ideas and Details: Is this poem high or low comedy? How do you know?

Working from the Text
10. Cite the text to illustrate how the author uses hyperbole for effect.

11. What words and phrases show how the speaker’s tone shifts throughout the poem?

12. How does Hughes’s use of verbals, especially participial phrases, contribute to the hyperbole in the poem? Quote specific lines and analyze the use of verbals and hyperbole.
Setting a Purpose for Reading

- As you read the poem, underline words and phrases that demonstrate hyperbole.
- Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.
- Mark lines you find humorous or strange with an exclamation point.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR
Ana Castillo is a celebrated Chicana poet, activist, novelist, and translator. Her commitment to human rights, free expression, and cultural exchange has shaped her career as a writer and scholar. Castillo's work in poetry and prose is highly innovative and is based on oral and literary traditions.

Poetry

El Chicle

by Ana Castillo

Mi’jo and I were laughing ha, ha, ha—when the gum he chewed fell out of his mouth and into my hair which, after I clipped it, flew in the air,
on the back of a dragonfly that dipped in the creek and was snapped fast by a turtle that reached high and swam deep.
Mi’jo wondered what happened to that gum, worried that it stuck to the back of my seat and Mami will be mad when she can’t get it out.
Meanwhile, the turtle in the pond that ate the dragonfly that carried the hair with the gum swam south on Saturday and hasn’t been seen once since.

Second Read
- Reread the poem to answer these text-dependent questions.
- Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

13. Craft and Structure: Who do you think “Mi’jo” refers to? What clues in the poem support your answer?

14. Key Ideas and Details: What is the central event of the poem? How do you know?
Working from the Text
15. What is the consistent tone of the poem, and who is the intended audience? Cite words or phrases from the poem to support your response.

Check Your Understanding
Return to the humorous texts you have read in this unit and identify a couple examples of hyperbole. Share your examples in a small group and discuss how hyperbole creates a humorous effect. Record examples shared by your peers in the graphic organizer.

INDEPENDENT READING LINK
Read and Connect
Research humorous texts in which the author uses hyperbole for effect. Choose a text that exemplifies the use of hyperbole, tone, and verbals. Cite examples to support your choice in your Reader/Writer Notebook. Include a brief summary explaining why this humorous text appeals to you. You will use your notes to recommend the text to your peers in a small group setting.
Learning Targets

- Interpret the use of wordplay in poetry and drama.
- Collaborate to explore wordplay in previously studied texts.
- Create a visual representation of a pun.

Preview

In this activity, you will read a poem and think about the author’s use of wordplay, specifically puns.

Setting a Purpose for Reading

- As you read the poem, underline words and phrases that demonstrate the author’s use of puns.
- Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.
- Draw a question mark next to any puns that you do not understand.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jack Prelutsky (b. 1940) says that he has always enjoyed playing with language, although he did not always like poetry. He rediscovered poetry in his twenties, when he began writing humorous verse for children. Since then, he has written more than fifty poetry collections. His poems are sometimes silly, sometimes playful, sometimes frightening, but always entertaining. In 2006, the Poetry Foundation named him the first-ever Children’s Poet Laureate. Prelutsky also studied music, and he has set several of his poems to music for the audio versions of his poetry anthologies.

Poetry

Is Traffic Jam Delectable?

by Jack Prelutsky

Is traffic jam delectable, does jelly fish in lakes, does tree bark make a racket, does the clamor rattle snakes?

Can salmon scale a mountain, does a belly laugh a lot, do carpets nap in flower beds or on an apricot?

Around my handsome bottleneck,
I wear a railroad tie,
my treasure chest puffs up a bit,
I blink my private eye.
I like to use piano keys to open locks of hair, then put a pair of brake shoes on and dance on debonair.
I hold up my electric shorts with my banana belt, then sit upon a toadstool and watch a tuna melt.
I dive into a car pool,
where I take an onion dip, then stand aboard the tape deck and sail my penmanship.
I put my dimes in riverbanks and take a quarterback, and when I fix a nothing flat
I use a lumberjack.
I often wave my second hand to tell the overtime, before I take my bull pen up to write a silly rhyme.

Second Read
- Reread the poem to answer these text-dependent questions.
- Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

1. Craft and Structure: How does Prelutsky’s understanding of children influence his choice of words? What is the result for the reader? Cite examples from the text to support your answer.
2. Key Ideas and Details: Puns depend on an audience’s understanding of both possible meanings of a word or phrase. Why might someone older be more likely to understand what a “tape deck” or “brake shoes” are? What does this indicate about the level of comedy involved in puns?

Working from the Text
3. Referencing the text as an example, define pun and create some examples of your own.

4. Mark the text by highlighting at least three humorous puns that you can visualize.
5. Sketch at least one of the puns in the margin of the poem or on a separate piece of paper.
6. In your discussion groups, share your sketches and read aloud the corresponding pun. Explain the two meanings of the word or phrase that creates the pun. Be sure to use precise diction and discuss how the author uses puns for humorous effect.
7. As a group, review the poem and discuss the puns that you notated with question marks. Try to collaborate to make meaning of these.

Analyzing a Humorous Skit
You will next read and/or listen to the skit “Who’s on First?” by Abbott and Costello.

8. Based on the title of the skit, what do you think is the subject?
9. Sketch a baseball diamond on a separate piece of paper. As you read the skit, try to fill in the names of each of the players mentioned.

10. Write answers to the following questions about “Who’s on First?” and compare them with a peer.

   • Why are Abbott and Costello having difficulty understanding each other?

   • How does the wordplay create humor at a high level of comedy?

11. Add your notes about comic language (hyperbole and wordplay) to the Elements of Humor graphic organizer in Activity 4.11.

Check Your Understanding
Reread “Is Traffic Jam Delectable?” Choose two of the puns in the poem and draw pictures to illustrate them.

Writing to Sources: Explanatory Text
Choose one of the texts from this or the previous activity. Explain how the writer uses comic language (hyperbole and/or wordplay) to express a universal truth. Be sure to:

   • Establish a controlling idea and support it with quotes from the text and commentary explaining the humor.
   • Use the correct terms to refer to the elements of humor.
   • Use verbals and precise diction.
   • Check that frequently confused words are used correctly.
Planning and Revising an Analysis of a Humorous Text

Reading and Analyzing a Sample Essay
An effective essay includes a clear introduction to the topic, body paragraphs that expand on the thesis and provide evidence and commentary to support it, and a conclusion that provides closure for the topic.

Introduction
- Begin with a hook.
- Set the context for the essay.
- Establish a controlling idea (thesis statement) that directly responds to the prompt.

Body Paragraphs
- Begin with a topic sentence related to the thesis.
- Include evidence from the text (paraphrased and directly quoted).
- Provide commentary that uses precise diction to describe humor and the intended effect.
- Use a variety of transitions to connect ideas and create coherence.

Concluding Paragraph
- Discuss the universal truth revealed through the text.
- Evaluate the effectiveness of the author’s use of humor to communicate this truth.

Setting a Purpose for Reading
- As you read the explanatory essay, underline precise diction and academic vocabulary, especially humorous vocabulary.
- Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.
- Place a question mark by any sentences or sections that you think need to be revised.
The Power of Pets

by Isha Sharma (an eighth-grade student)

Every child has gone through a phase in life when they have a sudden fixation with getting a pet, and parents often have to go through a lot of trouble in order to appease the child, at least until the obsession is replaced with another. In the light-hearted essay, “I’ve got a few pet peeves about sea creatures,” Dave Barry uses hyperbole and verbal irony to show how a parent will often go through great lengths to satisfy his child, often hoping that the child will learn something in the process.

To point out the often ridiculous experiences parents go through for their children, Barry uses hyperbole to emphasize how complicated getting a pet fish can be. For example, he explains first how a “pet” beetle under his daughter’s “loving care and feeding ... thrived for maybe nine seconds before expiring like a little six legged parking meter” (1). The additional use of simile and the exaggerated amount of time adds to the humor, as in any case, one’s “loving care and feeding” should not cause the death of anything so quickly, no matter how terrible the “care” could actually be. The explanation of the parents replacing each beetle with another shows how willing parents are to support their children no matter how ridiculous the circumstances. Furthermore, Barry calls the fish he bought “so nonviolent that in the wild, worms routinely beat them up and steal their lunch money” (2). As known to all people, it is fish that eat worms and not the other way around. This is hyperbolic because worms are not known for “beating fish up” and animals do not have money, lunch money included. This also ties back to a metaphor/analogy Barry made that “an aquarium is a powder keg that can explode in deadly violence at any moment just like ... junior high” (2). Both of these situations are highly exaggerated. Through the use of hyperbole, Barry is able to convey how parents often feel about their struggle even in simple situations, to which a child might react to them as being overdramatic.

Also, Barry uses verbal irony/sarcasm to vent and display his frustration, which proves furthermore the lengths he is going to help his daughter. For instance, when complaining about the aggressive nature of fish, he says they could become aggressive if “it was a month containing the letter ‘R’ of if they hear the song “Who Let the Dogs Out”” (2). Months and songs are all aspects of human life, it is unlikely that fish will ever have fish months or fish songs. This adds to the sarcastic tone of the writer, which shows that even through his frustrations, he is struggling to find the right choice for his daughter, no matter how much of a nuisance it is to make it. Also, Barry uses sarcasm when explaining the variety of needs for a fish tank so that “the fish would be intellectually stimulated and get into a decent college” (1). The author, as with most intellectual people, knows that fish do not have colleges, and seeing that their intelligence capacity is smaller than a human’s, they cannot be “intellectually stimulated.” The author uses this verbal irony to point out that even though the needs of a fish are not as significant as the needs of a human, caring for them still requires a lot of effort. Clearly, the author chooses to go through this effort for his daughter. The usage of verbal irony in this piece further points out the “struggles” of a father to appease his child.

4 Even in the most trivial instances, the parent will go through many obstacles to help his child, often in the hope that the child will learn something along the way. Whether or not the child actually learns this is questionable, yet the parent’s effort should not go unnoticed.

Second Read

• Reread the explanatory essay to answer these text-dependent questions.
• Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

4. Craft and Structure: Identify and write the hook, context, and controlling idea or thesis in the introduction.

5. Craft and Structure: In each paragraph, identify the topic sentence, supporting detail, commentary, and transitions and write your responses below.
6. Key Ideas and Details: In the concluding paragraph, identify and write the universal truth.

Working from the Text

7. Referring back to the question marks you noted in the text, create revision suggestions for each. Write your responses in the My Notes space next to the text.

8. Work with your writing group to revise the student essay. You may want to review the roles and responsibilities of writing group members in Activity 1.8. Select one or more of the following:
   - Write a new introduction.
   - Write a third support paragraph.
   - Write a new conclusion.

Check Your Understanding

Working with a partner, evaluate the revised student essay and briefly discuss any further revisions you think would improve it. Consult the steps in this activity to guide your discussion.

Independent Reading Checkpoint

Consider the connections you made while reading humorous texts. In one paragraph, summarize one message (theme) a particular author tried to convey to the reader through humor. Briefly describe the level of comedy and the elements of humor used by the author.
ASSIGNMENT
Write an essay that explains how an author creates humor for effect and uses it to communicate a universal truth.

Planning and Prewriting: Take time to make a plan for your essay.
- What reading strategies (such as marking or diffusing the text) will help you take notes on the author’s use of humor as you read the text?
- How can you correctly identify the level of comedy, elements of humor, and intended comedic effect on the reader?
- What prewriting strategies (such as outlining or graphic organizers) could help you explore, focus, and organize your ideas?

Drafting: Write a multiparagraph essay that effectively organizes your ideas.
- What elements of an effective introductory paragraph will you use in your writing?
- How will you develop support paragraphs with well-chosen examples (evidence) and thoughtful analysis (commentary) about at least two elements of humor?
- How will you use transitions to create cohesion?
- How will your conclusion support your ideas, identify and analyze the level(s) of comedy, and evaluate the author’s effectiveness at communicating a universal truth?

Evaluating and Revising the Draft: Create opportunities to review and revise your work.
- During the process of writing, when can you pause to share and respond with others in order to elicit suggestions and ideas for revision?
- How can the Scoring Guide help you evaluate how well your draft meets the requirements of the assignment?
- How can you use a precise vocabulary of humor to enhance your critical analysis?

Checking and Editing for Publication: Confirm your final draft is ready for publication.
- How will you proofread and edit your draft to demonstrate command of the conventions of standard English capitalization, punctuation, spelling, grammar, and usage?
- Did you effectively use verbals?
- Did you establish and maintain a formal style?

Reflection
After completing this Embedded Assessment, think about how you went about accomplishing this task, and respond to the following:
- How has your understanding of how humor is created developed during this unit?
- Do you think your sense of humor will change as you mature? Explain.

Technology Tip
Consider using an approved social media channel such as Edmodo or Wikispaces to collaboratively discuss your text online before drafting your essay.

LEARNING STRATEGIES:
QHT, Close Reading, Paraphrasing, Graphic Organizer

Learning Targets
- Reflect on learning and make connections.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the skills and knowledge needed to complete Embedded Assessment 2 successfully.

Making Connections
You have written an analysis of a humorous text, which required you to know and understand how a writer uses words, characters, and situations to create a humorous effect. Now you will have an opportunity to understand humor from a different perspective—that of a performer.

Essential Questions
1. Reflect on your understanding of the first Essential Question from Activity 4:1: How do writers and speakers use humor to convey truth? How has your understanding of humor changed over the course of this unit?

2. Think about the second Essential Question from Activity 4:1 and respond to it: What makes an effective performance of a Shakespearean comedy?

Developing Vocabulary
3. Reflect on and list all the new humor-related vocabulary you have learned. Use the My Notes section for additional space if needed.

4. Re-sort the unit Academic Vocabulary and Literary Terms using the QHT strategy.

5. Compare your resorted terms with your original list. How has your understanding changed?

6. Select a word from the chart and write a concise statement about your learning. How has your understanding changed over the course of this unit?

Unpacking Embedded Assessment 2
Closely read the Embedded Assessment 2 assignment:

Present your assigned scene in front of your peers to demonstrate your understanding of Shakespeare’s text, elements of comedy, and performance.

Then, using the Scoring Guide on page 352, work with your class to paraphrase the expectations and create a graphic organizer to use as a visual reminder of the required concepts and skills. Copy the graphic organizer for future reference.

After each activity, use this graphic to guide reflection about what you have learned and what you still need to learn in order to be successful in completing the Embedded Assessment.

INDEPENDENT READING LINK
Read and Discuss
In this half of the unit, you will prepare to perform a scene from one of Shakespeare’s plays. You will have the chance to read other humorous texts independently. Gather in a small group and discuss other humor writers you know about, and other comedies by Shakespeare. Prepare a reading list.
Creating Context for Shakespearean Comedy

Learning Targets
• Research to build knowledge about Shakespeare.
• Collaborate to build and share knowledge about Shakespeare.
• Make connections to establish context for the play A Midsummer Night’s Dream.

Unit 4 • The Challenge of Comedy 329
Creating Context for Shakespearean Comedy

Understanding Plot
2. Read these scenarios to determine how you would respond. Make notes about your reactions in the My Notes space.

Scenario One
The person you are in love with has invited you to your high school dance. Your parents, who disapprove of this person, lay down the law, saying, “You are absolutely not allowed to attend the dance with this person. If you wish to attend, you may go with X. Your choices are to go to the dance with X or not go at all.” You are now faced with a dilemma. You are forbidden to go to the dance with the person you love, but you are permitted to attend with X, who has been in love with you forever and whom your parents adore.

Consider this: Would you still go to the dance under these conditions? Why or why not?

Scenario Two
Since you were forbidden by your parents to attend the dance with the person you love, the two of you devise a plan to sneak out and attend the dance anyway. All of a sudden you notice that your love is nowhere in sight. You begin to search the room for her/him. Eventually, you find her/him in the corner of the room talking with your best friend. You happily interrupt the conversation only to be horrified to discover that your love is confessing her/his love to your best friend.

Consider this: What would you do if you saw your girlfriend/boyfriend confessing her/his love to your best friend? How would you feel?

Scenario Three
You confront your love after seeing her/him kiss your best friend. Your girlfriend/boyfriend loudly announces that she/he is no longer interested in you and no longer wants anything to do with you. Your best friend seems confused about the situation as she/he has always been in love with your boyfriend or girlfriend, but the feeling was never shared.

Consider this: What would you do if your girlfriend/boyfriend treated you this way? Would you be mad at your best friend?

Check Your Understanding
Pick a question that you identified in the third column of the chart about Shakespeare. Do research to answer that question. Record the question and the answer in your Reader/Writer Notebook.
Connection to the Play

In Shakespeare’s comedy A Midsummer Night’s Dream, four characters—Lysander, Hermia, Helena, and Demetrius—are entangled in a very complicated love relationship that leaves them open to all sorts of comical mishaps.

3. Using the following information about the key characters from the play, create a visual that shows the relationship among the characters listed below. Practice pronouncing the characters’ names. Study the pronunciation of the names, noting the long and short vowel sounds and silent letters as a guide to facilitate your oral pronunciation.

Visual Representation of Characters’ Relationships

Narrative Writing Prompt

Using the information from the three scenarios, write your own scenarios for the four key characters described above. Be sure to:

- Incorporate an element of comedy examined earlier in this unit.
- Provide detail about the situation described in your scenario.
- Use precise diction.
- Check the spellings of any words that are frequently confused with similar words.
Learning Targets
- Read closely to understand the meaning of Shakespeare’s language.
- Prepare a dramatic text with proper inflection, tone, gestures, and movement.

Decoding Shakespeare’s Language
Note that punctuation marks signal tone of voice, a crucial element of performance.

“Hang off, thou cat, thou burr! Vile thing, let loose,
Or I will shake thee from me like a serpent.”

1. Use close reading to understand the meaning of each line below. Then, write a paraphrase of your interpretation.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Character</th>
<th>Quote/Insult</th>
<th>Paraphrase (Modern English)</th>

</tbody>
</table>
ACTIVITY 4.14

2. Once you have determined the meaning of the lines, select one and complete the chart below. Rehearse your line in preparation for a performance. Then, role play by becoming that character and feeling that emotion. Move throughout the room and deliver your insult with flair. Be sure to allow time for peers to react to your delivery.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Write the insult you have chosen below.</th>
<th>What inflection will you use? What words will you stress when you speak your lines?</th>
<th>How will you alter your tone when you deliver your line?</th>
<th>What gestures/movements will you use to enhance your line?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

3. What tone of voice do people usually use when delivering an insult? What emotions might someone be feeling when they insult another person, and why?

Check Your Understanding

Reflect on your understanding of Shakespeare’s language. What resources did you use to help you interpret his words? Were they useful? What would you do differently the next time you have to read his words? Discuss with a partner.

My Notes
Close Reading of a Scene

Learning Targets
• Collaborate to make meaning of a scene.
• Summarize and visualize the text to demonstrate understanding.

Preview
In this activity, you will read a scene from a Shakespearean play and think about its meaning.

Setting a Purpose for Reading
• As you read the scene, underline words and phrases that are meant to be insults.
• Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR
Little is known about the early life of William Shakespeare (1564–1616) except that he was born and grew up in Stratford-on-Avon in England. What is known is that he went to London as a young man and became an actor and playwright. He wrote 37 plays (comedies, tragedies, and histories) and is considered one of the greatest playwrights who ever lived. Performances of his plays occur regularly in theaters around the world.

Drama from A Midsummer Night’s Dream
by William Shakespeare

Act 3, Scene 2, Lines 282–305

HERMIA
Oh me! you juggler! you canker-blossom!
You thief of love! What, have you come by night
And stolen my love’s heart from him?

HELENA
285
Fine, i’faith!

Have you no modesty, no maiden shame,
No touch of bashfulness? What, will you tear
Impatient answers from my gentle tongue?
Fie, fie! you counterfeit, you puppet, you!

290
Puppet? Why so? Ay, that way goes the game.
Now, I perceive that she hath made compare
Between our statures; she hath urged her height;
And with her personage, her tall personage,
Her height, forsooth, she hath prevail'd with him.
And are you grown so high in his esteem;

Because I am so dwarfish and so low?
How low am I, thou painted maypole? speak;
How low am I? I am not yet so low
But that my nails can reach unto thine eyes.

I pray you, though you mock me, gentlemen,
Let her not hurt me: I was never curst;
I have no gift at all in shrewishness;
I am a right maid for my cowardice:
Let her not strike me. You perhaps may think,
Because she is something lower than myself,

That I can match her.

Second Read

• Reread the scene to answer these text-dependent question.
• Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

1. Key Ideas and Details: What details in the text should a director consider when casting Helena and Hermia?

Working from the Text

2. Refer to the unknown words or phrases you circled and use reference books or online reference sources to define the words in context. Next to each word you circled, write a synonym or create a paraphrase in modern English.

3. Write a summary of this scene.

4. Reread the text orally with your group.

5. As you listen to the text being read a third time, visualize how the characters would be moving, gesturing, and speaking. Write comments, draw pictures, or stand to act what you are visualizing.

Check Your Understanding

Explain how this scene is intended to be comical on stage. What elements of comedy are represented?
Learning Targets

- Establish and follow collaborative norms.
- Analyze and rehearse a dramatic scene collaboratively.

Analyzing a Dramatic Scene

1. Quickwrite: Describe the attitudes and behaviors (norms) of a positive and productive member of an acting group.

2. In the spaces below, write the names of the members of your acting company for the roles they will play. Write the scene you will perform, the names of the characters, and who will play each character.

Rehearsing a Dramatic Scene

3. You will next be assigned a scene from A Midsummer Night’s Dream that your acting group will perform. Work collaboratively in your acting group to make meaning of the text. Follow these steps to guide your close reading and annotation of the text. You will be responsible for taking notes on your script and for using this script and notes as you plan and rehearse your scene.

- Skim/scan the text and circle unfamiliar words. Use a dictionary or thesaurus to replace each unfamiliar word with a synonym.
- Reread the scene and paraphrase the lines in modern English.
- Summarize the action. What is happening in the scene?
- Reread the scene and mark the text to indicate elements of humor (caricature, situation, irony, wordplay, hyperbole).
- Mark the punctuation, and determine how the punctuation affects the spoken lines. Discuss tone of voice and inflection.
- Analyze the movement in your scene:
  - What is each character doing?
  - When should characters enter and exit?
  - How should characters enter and exit?
  - What could you do to exaggerate the humor or create a humorous spin?
- Analyze the blocking in your scene, that is, the movement and placement of characters as they speak:
  - Where is each character standing?
  - To whom is each spoken line addressed?

4. Divide lines equally between group members. You may have to be more than one character. One person in your group will be both a player (actor) and the director.

Director:
5. Rehearse your scene. To accurately portray your character and achieve your intended comic effect, be sure to focus on the following:
   - tone and inflection
   - correct pronunciation of words
   - facial expression and gesture

Check Your Understanding
Reflect on the process of reading your scene and determining the meaning of the text, as well as your preparation for and rehearsal of the scene.
   - What went well? What will you want to replicate in future rehearsals and in your performance?
   - What is a revision or something new you plan to do as you continue to rehearse?
Facing the Challenge of Performance

Learning Targets
- Read and respond to an informational text about performance challenges.
- Memorize and rehearse lines for performance.

Preview
In this activity, you will read an informational text about performing and think about how these tips can help you prepare for your performance.

Setting a Purpose for Reading
- As you read the informational text, underline words and phrases that identify the main idea of each section.
- Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.
- Place an exclamation point by the tips you think most apply to you.

Fear Busters
10 Tips to Overcome Stage Fright!
by Gary Guwe

F – Focus on your most powerful Experience
Think about your most memorable and powerful experience when you accomplished a goal—maybe a time you worked extremely hard on a project or did well on a test. Reflect on your most powerful experience and remember the feeling of confidence; think about everything you did to create that feeling and how proud you felt after doing something challenging.

E – Energize Yourself
You have adrenaline pumping through your veins. Your heart is racing and your muscles are all tensed up. Your eyes are shift y and you are unsettled. You are ready to bolt for the door ... or are you?

An adrenaline rush is a built-in defense mechanism for human beings. It is a natural response mechanism that allows us to fight or take flight in the event of danger. That explains the heightened sensitivity we have when we are nervous and excited.
Harness this nervous energy and make it work for you! One way we harness this nervous energy is to move around. Your character will at some point move and gesture. Use the times when your character can move and react as opportunities to dissipate your nervous energy.

A – Acknowledge Your Fears

It is said that fear is here to protect us, not paralyze us. Don’t run away from being afraid. Acknowledge it as being part of you … use it to identify the possible pitfalls, then work to think about how you can avoid the pitfalls or how you can adjust or adapt if something goes wrong during your performance.

R – Relax … breathe!

Take deep breaths and regulate your breathing. Let the breathing regulate and calm your heart rate. Practice breathing when you rehearse.

B – Believe in Yourself

Know that your performance has the potential for being a powerful and memorable moment in your life. You will feel a huge sense of accomplishment and pride when you successfully perform your scene. Be knowledgeable about your part and prepared with your lines, and you will be ready to execute with confidence.

U – Understand the Audience

Understand that the audience is here to see you succeed. They know how it feels to perform, and they’re not here to sabotage you, or poke fun at you … they’re here to learn from you, to laugh, and to be entertained.

S – Smile!

Changing one’s physiology can impact one’s mental state.

Before your performance, when your character allows, and immediately afterwards—smile. Soon enough, your body will tell your brain that you’re happy … and before you know it, any fear you have will melt away.

T – Talk to Yourself

Many people will begin telling themselves various reasons why they will not be able to perform well. Counter that.

Tell yourself that you will be able to do a good job and remind yourself of the reasons why you can (“I am prepared.” “I will have fun.” “I know my peers will laugh when … ”).

E – Enjoy yourself

Get out on the stage and seek to have fun!

R – Rejoice!

Many people begin visualizing their worst case scenario as they ready themselves to perform.

Visualize yourself victorious at the end of the performance. Think of the amount of effort you will have put into preparing and think about the smiles and laughter which you will create and the skills and concepts you will have practiced and mastered.
Second Read

- Reread the informational text to answer these text-dependent questions.
- Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

1. Key Ideas and Details: Refer to the words and phrases you underlined and summarize the main idea of each section.

2. Craft and Structure: How is the text structured? Why do you think the author structured the text in this way?

Working from the Text

3. Quickwrite: What is the biggest challenge you face when it comes to performing your comic scene?

4. Refer to the text and write your personal response to each tip in the My Notes space. Use them as a guide for a collaborative discussion.

5. Discuss the ten tips with your acting group. Which tips did you notate as applying most to you? How will you use this advice?
Memorization Tips
Memorizing lines is a key part of delivering a good performance. Think about school plays you may have seen. Characters who deliver their lines clearly and without hesitation perform well.

Tip 1: Repeat, Repeat, Repeat, Repeat
Say the line over and over, but do it one word at a time, returning to the beginning of the line each time.

Example: Line 108 from Scene 5: “If we offend, it is with our good will.”
“if.” “If we.” “If we offend.” “If we offend, it is.” “If we offend, it is with.” “If we offend, it is with our.” “If we offend, it is with our good.” “If we offend, it is with our good will.”

Tip 2: Recite and Erase
Write your line(s) on a whiteboard, and then practice the words.
• Recite the line.
• Erase a word or phrase, and recite the missing piece from memory.
• Repeat the process until all the words have disappeared and you are saying the line(s) from memory.

6. Discuss other tips your peers may have for memorizing lines. Then, select your hardest line to memorize and use the memorization tips to work on it.

Check Your Understanding
Describe at least three strategies you can use to overcome stage fright. How will you remind yourself of those strategies on the day of the performance?
Learning Targets

- Analyze a dramatic character to inform a performance.
- Collaborate to draft and implement a performance plan.

Character Focus Groups

1. Players: Reread your lines, using the graphic organizer to guide a close reading and analysis of your character.

   Meet in a focus group, whose members are all acting as the same character, and work collaboratively to interpret what the lines reveal about your character. Take turns sharing your individual analysis and add new insights to the graphic organizer.

Acting Groups

4. Return to your acting group and share your analysis in the order that your character speaks during your scene. Discuss the implications of each character’s words and actions.

We want to create a ______ mood. To accomplish this goal, we will ...
I will introduce the acting company and scene by ...
The scene will end when ______ so the audience will be left with a feeling of ...
We will focus on the comic effects listed below to ensure that ...

9. Use your performance plan to rehearse your scene to accurately portray your character and achieve your intended comic effect. Be sure to focus on the following:

- tone and inflection
- correct pronunciation of words
- gestures and movement

Check Your Understanding

Reflect on the process of planning for and rehearsing your scene. Think about what went well and what you will want to improve in future performances. In your Reader/Writer Notebook, write one improvement you would like to make on your own part, and one suggestion for improvement you can offer the group as a whole.
Learning Targets

- Analyze film and text in order to compare/contrast and evaluate the director’s choices.
- Generate and evaluate performance choices.

Viewing Shakespeare on Film

1. Unlike comparing novels to film versions, turning a play script into a movie allows the viewer to make a close comparison. Think about the extent to which the film scripts adhere to or stray from the original Shakespeare scene and how the actors make the lines come alive through their voices, expressions, and movements.

2. As you view the film or a scene from A Midsummer Night's Dream, take notes on what you observe. Use the graphic organizer for either “Actors” or “Directors.”

Actors:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Version of A Midsummer Night’s Dream (Director/Year)</th>
<th>Physical Gestures and Movements</th>
<th>Costume and Makeup</th>
<th>Interpretive Choices in the Delivery of Lines</th>

Actors’ Questions

3. To what extent do these films stay faithful to or depart from the original script? Why might these particular choices have been made, and what effect do these choices have on the viewers' understanding of the scene?

4. How do your character's gestures, movements, and language achieve a comical effect? What elements of humor did you see?

Directors’ Questions

5. How has the director stayed faithful to or departed from the scene as written by Shakespeare? What effects do certain staging and technical choices have on the viewers’ understanding of the scene?

6. How do the staging, set design, lighting, sound, and props achieve a comical effect? What elements of humor did you see?

Check Your Understanding

Why would a film director choose to portray a scene differently than the way the author wrote it? What effects might the director be trying to achieve?
Learning Targets
• Participate in a dress rehearsal of a dramatic scene.
• Reflect on strengths and challenges as a performer.

Dress Rehearsal
1. Participate in a dress rehearsal in which you perform your scene in front of another group. This rehearsal will help you determine what works well in your performance and what does not.
2. When you are in the role of a small group audience, use the Scoring Guide criteria to provide constructive feedback to enable the acting company to adjust its performance.
3. Consider using these questions to start your feedback conversation:
   • What elements of humor do you think you were most successful at using? Least successful?
   • Can you explain why you made the choice to ...
   • When did you feel the audience was most with you?
   • When did you feel the audience was least connected to your performance?
   • Did you ever have to adapt or adjust differently than you had planned? Explain. How did it work out?

Dress Rehearsal Reflection
4. What went well? What will you want to replicate in your performance?

5. What is the most significant thing you are going to do differently? How will you prepare?

Independent Reading Checkpoint
Choose a short part of the play you have been reading independently and rewrite it in modern English. Read it out loud to your teacher or a partner.
Performing Shakespearean Comedy

ASSIGNMENT

Present your assigned scene in front of your peers to demonstrate your understanding of Shakespeare’s text, elements of comedy, and performance.

Planning: As an acting company, prepare to perform your scene.

- How will you collaborate as a group on a performance plan that demonstrates an understanding of Shakespeare’s humor?
- Does each member of the acting company understand the scene’s meaning as well as his or her role?
- What elements of humor will your company focus on in performance?
- How will you emphasize these elements through the delivery of lines, characterization, gestures, movements, props, and/or setting?
- How will you mark your script to help you pronounce words correctly, emphasize words appropriately, and remember your lines and deliver them smoothly?
- How will you use blocking and movement to interact onstage and emphasize elements of humor?

Rehearsing: Rehearse and revise your performance with your acting company.

- How will you show how characters, conflicts, and events contribute to a universal idea?
- How will you introduce and conclude the scene?
- How can the Scoring Guide help you evaluate how well your performance meets the requirements of the assignment?
- How can you give and receive feedback about your use of eye contact, volume, and inflection in order to improve your own and others’ performances?

Performing and Listening: Perform your scene and participate as an audience member.

- How will you convey ideas and emotions through your performance?
- How will you take notes on the elements of humor emphasized in other performances?

Reflection

After completing this Embedded Assessment, think about how you went about accomplishing this task, and respond to the following:

- How did different performers emphasize the elements of humor in their scenes?
- Which performances were successful in eliciting a humorous response from the audience, and what made them effective?

Technology Tip

As part of the rehearsal process, consider video recording your performance. Also, consider using a musical recording to introduce and/or conclude your performance.
